SUMMER INSTITUTES IN SOCIOLOGY & HISTORY AT S.G.W.U. JULY 8 - AUG. 22

Five distinguished scholars from Canada, the United States and Europe will make up the faculty of the Summer Institutes in Sociology and History at Sir George Williams University.

The program, begun as a Sociology Department project in 1964, has had the affiliation of the History Department since 1966. Registration is now open for the courses which all carry degree credit. The Institutes will run from July 8 to August 22.

Visiting Professors and their subjects are:

- Rudolf Schlesinger, University of Glasgow: History and Sociology: The Growth of Bureaucracy in Modern Capitalist and Socialist Societies - particular attention devoted to the structure of classes and bureaucracies in the Soviet Union;
- Renée C. Fox, Department of Social Relations at Harvard University: Medical Sociology - emphasis on the relationships between the particular institutions involved with the medical world and the structure of the total society;
- Stanley Mealing, chairman of the Department of History at Carleton University: Social History of the Canadas to 1850 - the significance of the two Canadas in the development of the country, with special emphasis on the frontier, immigration, urbanization and relations with Great Britain, France and the U.S.;
- A.N.J. den Hollander, Director of the Sociologisch Seminarium and head of the Department of Sociology at the University of Amsterdam: Social Change - an analysis of social change in various societies and the relationship between social change, the changing culture and economic life;
- Herbert Gutman, Department of History at the University of Rochester: The Transition from Pre-Industrial to Industrial Society in the United States, 1843-1893 - social and cultural aspects of industrialization with special emphasis on significant factors that shaped the transition: religion, older pre-industrial social structures, the relations between financial power and technology, the culture of northern European immigrants in the New World, the ideology of the "self-made" man, etc.

Dr. Rudolf Schlesinger, former Visiting Professor in Economics at SGWU, has studied at the University of Vienna and at London University, receiving a doctorate from each. He has worked in and studied the labour movement in Austria, Germany, Russia and Czechoslovakia. He is editor of Soviet Studies and Co-existence. Among his many articles and books which have appeared in several languages are Soviet Legal Theory, Central European Democracy and its Background: Sectional Mass-Organization, and Marx: His Time and Ours.

Dr. Renée C. Fox studied at Smith, Radcliffe and Harvard. Her research has been done in the U.S., Belgium and the Congo. In addition to papers and articles, she has published Experiment Perilous and The Emerging Physician.

Stanley Mealing is a graduate of the University of Alberta and Oxford University. He was a Rhodes Scholar for Alberta and has been awarded fellowships by Harvard University, the Canada Council and the Humanities Research Council of Canada. He has served as editor of the Canadian Historical Association's historical booklet series and is currently co-editor of Social History: A Canadian Review. He is author of Two Democracies and many scholarly articles.

Dr. A.N.J. den Hollander studied at the Universities of Amsterdam, Kiel, Munich, Berlin, Paris and London. He has done research in Germany, Austria, Hungary, the Balkans and the U.S., and has been visiting professor at many universities in Europe and America. He was head of the UNESCO Social Science Team to Pakistan and he has conducted a survey of the social structure in Indonesia. He is vice-president of the International Sociological Association and president of the Sociological Association of the Netherlands. His many articles, monographs and books include a research monograph on the poor whites of the southern U.S. sponsored by the Rockefeller Foundation.

Dr. Herbert Gutman is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. He has taught and done research at the State University of New York, The New School for Social Research and Columbia University, and has been a fellow of the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences, Palo Alto, California. He is associate editor of Labor History and is the author of many studies in American social history.
